

Boston, May 30, 1832.

My dear Friend:

Contrary to my expectations at the date of my former letter, I am exceedingly happy to inform you that I have arranged my business so as to be able to attend the Convention; consequently, I shall avail myself of your polite invitation, ~~and~~ making your house my home during my tarry. It is probable that I shall arrive in Philadelphia on Saturday evening.

The Convention will be likely to excite the attention of the public in an unusual degree. I am sorry to learn, by a letter from my agent at Cincinnati, that Ohio will not be represented. Such remissness, at a crisis like the present, is hardly excusable. If but few delegates are sent from other places, Philadelphia should enlarge her own number, if nothing in the rules of the Convention prevent.

The Rev. Mr. Jocelyn informs me, by letter, that he intends being present at the Convention. Whether Mr. Tappan will, also, I do not know; but I shall send him a letter this afternoon, urging his attendance.

I would fill this sheet with my poor thoughts, if the hope of seeing you, face to face, did not render the duty unnecessary.

My "Thoughts on African Colonization" have now assumed a tangible shape, and will be ready for sale in this city to-morrow. I make no calculation with regard to their effect upon the public mind; but, hastily as they have been put together, I believe they are calculated to make a salutary impression. I understand that I am very much indebted to you for your efforts, your very successful efforts, to procure subscribers for the same. I shall bring as many copies with me as I can conveniently carry.

My respects and good wishes to you, accomplished lady, and to all inquiring friends.

Very sincerely yours,

Wm. Lloyd Garrison.
